First impressions have been good so far, with the Productivity peak. I have been spending time with the IDE every day, and have learned some things about it so far. It doesn't seem to come with any of the PHP/HTML/CSS syntax highlighting that most IDE's come with by default, so I checked that out. Productivity has made it easy to find/install PHP highlighting...which seems to work fine. It doesn't seem to be able to reference files in the project by default, and it isn't very intuitive on how to do so. Mainly I've been enjoying the Productivity aspects so far. I haven't had a chance to really look into the Unit test aspects yet, or how the Eclipse Platform integration works, or how it handles project loading. Overall seems to be a solid IDE so far. Give it a try for yourself if you need to use PHP for web development, and decide for yourself. 09e8f5149f
